2 Reagan Aides May Be Afoul Of Registration Act

By Edward Roeder
Special To The Constitution

WASHINGTON — Two longtime associates of Ronald Reagan who are closely involved in his presidential campaign have apparently run afoul of the Foreign Agents Registration Act in at least two ways, including apparent violation of the same provision of the law that ensnared President Carter's brother, Billy.

The two are Michael Deaver, one of Reagan's closest campaign aides who travels with the candidate and coordinates the campaign tour, and Peter Hannaford, an adviser to the campaign and an associate since the days when he and Deaver served Reagan in the California governor's office.

They are principals in a public relations and lobbying firm that failed to register as a foreign agent for Guatemalan interests while carrying on political and lobbying activities in WASHINGTON — Six days after privately advising a Justice Department aide to wait 10 days before instituting criminal or other charges against Billy Carter, Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti urged President Carter to get his brother to register as a foreign agent for Libya.

The aide, Joel Lisker, chief of the foreign agents registration office, told a special Senate subcommittee late Thursday that as recently as the first week of July, only days before Billy Carter registered under protest as Libya, Justice Department still considering filing charges against Billy Carter.

"To say the least, we've had some misgivings," Lisker testified.

Lisker said the president deceived the Justice Department in his relationships with the Libyan government and the fact that he had received money from the Libyans.

Lisker's boss, Philip H. Abelson, said the criminal division, too,

The two Reagan associates are president and board chairman, respectively, of Deaver and Hannaford Inc., a Los Angeles-based public relations firm that handled promotion of Reagan's personal appearances, radio commentaries, and newspaper columns after he left the governor's office.

Reached in Los Angeles, Hannaford said a letter and registration forms had been sent to Joel Lister, the Justice Department prosecutor responsible for registering foreign agents. Lister, who was preparing to testify before a Senate subcommittee about his efforts to get Billy Carter to register, was unavailable for comment.

Both Hannaford and Deaver and the firm are registered with the internal security section of the Justice Department as foreign agents for two of the firm's other clients, the Republic of China (Taiwan) and an Argentine trade promotion group.

But, contrary to the requirements of the Foreign Agents Registration Act, neither they nor the firm has disclosed to the Department of Justice their ties with Asociacion de Amigos del Pais (AAP), a group consisting mostly of Guatemalan businessmen.

AAP hired the Deaver and Hannaford firm as part of an effort to get the United States "to back off on the selective application of human rights policies to Guatemala" and "to get fair press coverage for Guatemala in this country," a lobbyist handling the account for Deaver and Hannaford said.

The Guatemalan government has been repeatedly criticized here for violating principles of human rights, including alleged repression of political opposition through a campaign of terror that has included assassination and torture.

Deaver and Hannaford did register with the secretary of the Senate as lobbyists for AAP in a file dated Aug. 12. But, according to the Senate's lobby registrar, the firm's registration under the Regulation of Lobbying Act has not been accepted, because it failed to disclose required information as to the nature of its expected expenditures, listed at $10,000 per month.

Lobby Registrar Shirley Tucker said Thursday that she sent a request for additional information to the firm Aug. 15, but that no response has been received.

Yet the firm has begun lobbying for AAP on Capitol Hill and circulating what the Justice Department defines as "propaganda" without reporting either activities to the internal security section of the Justice Department, as required by law.

The Deaver and Hannaford firm, which last week moved to larger offices in Washington, has hired Harold L. "Bud" Aronson to handle the AAP account. Aronson is a former official of the Nixon and Ford administrations, who this summer resigned his job as minority counsel to a House small business subcommittee.

In an interview this week, Aronson confirmed that "I have begun to meet with members of the press and I have begun to meet with people on both (House and Senate) sides of the Capitol, on both (Republican and Democratic) sides of the aisle" on behalf of AAP. He later said that he had met with congressional staffers, but had not yet met with any members of Congress to lobby for AAP. Aronson declined to identify the staffers with whom he had discussed AAP.

Aronson said he was aware that the Foreign Agents Registration Act required disclosure of such activities to the Justice Department, but that filing had been held up due to "administrative delays," and that the forms would be filed "within a few days." He said that the contract had been arranged by Peter Hannaford, chairman of the firm.

An aide in Lister's office said that as of late Wednesday no communications from Deaver and Hannaford had been received since June 29, when the firm filed a routine report listing its propaganda and lobbying activities on behalf of two other foreign clients.

Hannaford said he didn't know when the registration material had been sent, but that it was "within the past seven to 10 days." He refused further comment, saying, "All of our relations with our clients are confidential, and I can't discuss them now — you can see me in Washington next week."

A Justice Department spokesman said that under the Foreign Agents Registration Act required disclosure information "has to be filed within 10 days of agreeing to act on behalf of a foreign principal and before acting." The spokesman added that "what constitutes acting on behalf of a foreign principal is doing anything — acting covered by the act."

The covered activities include lobbying, and most other activities which Aronson said

Guatemala, which has strife in the past two years or disappearances at rightist forces and guerrilla U.S. economic and military U.S. government has refused to provide the Guatemalan government

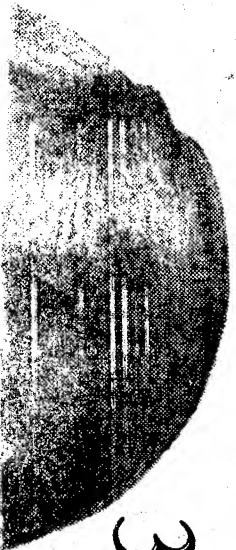

According to papers prepared by Deaver and Hannaford on the control of the country the government is "not totally opposed to social progress

In an interview, former President Francisco Villaquiran, a "venerable organization" of men, had only very recent international political field.

A Justice Department spokesman said that under the Foreign Agents Registration Act required disclosure information "has to be filed within 10 days of agreeing to act on behalf of a foreign principal and before acting." The spokesman added that "What constitutes acting on behalf of a foreign principal is doing anything — acting, engaging in activities covered by the act."

The covered activities include public relations, lobbying, and most other foreign-sponsored efforts to influence U.S. officials or public opinion, including activities which Aronson said he has already begun.

Guatemala, which has been torn by domestic strife in the past two years, including 2,000 assassinations or disappearances attributed to pro-government rightist forces and guerrilla strikes by leftists, is seeking U.S. economic and military aid. The Carter administration has refused to provide weapons requested by the Guatemalan government on human rights' grounds.

According to papers prepared and distributed by Deaver and Hannaford on behalf of AAP, "The political control of the country rests with the military," but the government is "not totalitarian." The U.S. government considers the Guatemalan government to be opposed to social progress and engaging in harsh repression.

In an interview, former Guatemalan Vice President Francisco Villagran-Kramer said that AAP, "a venerable organization" of "very enterprising businessmen," had only very recently "entered the local and international political field."

"The majority of them feel that Reagan is the best candidate for their interests," Villagran-Kramer said. "They have the feeling that Reagan would set aside the policy of human rights."

IN SEPTEMBER, 1957, DEAVER CHANGED HIS MAJOR TO PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION. HE ATTENDED CONTINUALLY UNTIL GRADUATION ON SEPTEMBER 2, 1960, WITH AN (AB) DEGREE IN PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION. HE OBTAINED A CUMULATIVE GRADE POINT AVERAGE OF 2.43 OUT OF A POSSIBLE 4.0. THERE WAS NO DEROGATORY INFORMATION CONCERNING APPOINTEE IN [ ] RECORDS.

ON FEBRUARY 18, 1981, [ ] SAN JOSE STATE UNIVERSITY, PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION DEPARTMENT, ADVISED THAT IN HIS TWENTY-SEVEN YEARS WITH SAN JOSE STATE UNIVERSITY HE DOES NOT RECALL HAVING KNOWN APPOINTEE WHILE HE WAS ENROLLED IN THE PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION DIVISION. THAT THE APPOINTEE'S CHARACTER WAS ABOVE REPROACH AND SPOKE HIGHLY OF APPOINTEE'S ASSOCIATES AND REPUTATION WHILE HE WAS ENROLLED AT THE PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION DIVISION. HE FURTHER

Deaver

A one-time barroom piano player, Michael K. Deaver, 42, entertained the Reagan campaign plane on an electric piano during long trips this fall. But he also served as a trusted troubleshooter on the campaign, a job he had filled on Reagan's staff in Sacramento. He is sensitive to Reagan's moods, and he and his wife, Carolyn, are close to the president-elect's wife, Nancy.

A friendly sort with a ready smile, Deaver gets along with just about everyone on Reagan's staff and in the press corps. He is often called upon to deal with sticky personnel or political problems. Like many Reagan aides, he shares the president-elect's enormous confidence in Reagan's skill as a public speaker. Deaver owns a public relations firm with Peter Hannaford, another Reagan confidant.

MICHAEL K. DEAVER

Michael K. Deaver — A one-time barroom piano player, Deaver, 42, was the skilled adjutant of the Reagan campaign plane as he was of the Reagan administration in Sacramento. He is sensitive to Reagan's moods, and he and his wife, Carolyn, are close to the president-elect's influential wife, Nancy. Once a behind-the-scenes figure, Deaver became more open and outspoken when he rejoined the campaign after the firing of John Sears in February. He is popular with the press and staff and often serves as a troubleshooter on sticky personnel or political problems. Peter Hannaford, his partner in their Los Angeles-based advertising firm, is one of Reagan's best speechwriters.
